The group represents the Madonna and Child receiving the homage of the Magi. One of the latter is kneeling at her feet kissing the foot of the Holy Child; one is standing by her side on her right, holding in his hands a golden cruet, and the outline of his form marks, to the right, the outline of the group. On the other side must have stood the third of the Magi whose figure, however, is entirely missing. The block of walnut here has been cut off short, leaving that end of the group unfinished, although it is coated with red color, quite unlike the base, which is delicately decorated in finest polychrome and gilt design on gesso. The specimen is said to be of the seventeenth century; it may be earlier. It is two feet ten inches in height, by two feet in width in its present condition. The figures are half life size. But for the missing figure, it is well preserved: and the rich polychrome elaborated in gold, and the general treatment of the figures, are characteristic of the Spanish method of the time. In Gothic times, the practice was universal of painting and gilding sculptures of all kinds. Stone, wood, ivory, and even metal were colored in an effort at realism inherited from the older civilizations. The painter and sculptor, when not one and the same, worked together. The Flemish artist influenced...
