The accounts of X. for the year ended February 2 1901 are closed, and thus the conclusion of this book is approached. Many points of lesser importance have been allowed to pass untouched, because their consideration, whilst, perhaps, only slightly improving the system, would have entailed the very complications which it has been my endeavour to avoid; and, when these points, which are not very numerous or important, arise, they will be easily overcome by a little careful study of the requirements of the situation. CASH BOOK. Form A. CASH BOOK. Form A. Form B. DEPARTMENTAL PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNTS. Extension Of Form B. INCOME TAX. INCOME TAX AS RELATING TO AGRICULTURE. No work of an accountancy character can be considered complete unless it deals with the much-vexed question of Income Tax to some extent, and particularly is this so in relation to that class of business the accounts of which are the subjectmatter of its pages. It is desired that this handbook shall be of practical use to the agricultural public, and that it shall contain such information as will enable the agriculturist to usefully refer to it as a guide to the manner in which he should (a) keep his accounts, (b) ascertain his profits and losses, and (c) represent the said profits and losses to the Commissioners of Income Tax from time to time in such a manner that the tax which he actually pays shall always be the sum which is...
