Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Juvenile Instructor, Vol. 24 of 16: August 15, 1889 Much interest is manifested of late years by the Later-day Saints in the native of New Zealand called the Maories. This is due to the fact that, within the last ten years, Elders have been sent from Zion to proclaim the glad message of the gospel to them. Their labors have been crowned with success. Large branches have been organized and some of the Church works translated into their language. The Instructor has published from time to time many interesting letters and articles from the pens of the missionaries giving account of the introduction of the gospel and their subsequent labors among them. We thought it would not be uninteresting to give our young readers a general idea of their habits, customs, modes of living, etc., with the accompanying engraving. New Zealand is a group of islands situated south and east of Australia in the Pacific Ocean, and like Australia, possesses many peculiarities of climate and natural production, and is inhabited by a number of tribes which are generally hostile to each other, but which are almost identical in appearance and habits.
